- The cruise line's policy
- The timing of your change request
- The type of changes you wish to make

Typically, you can change a booking for reasons such as:

- Modifying the departure date
- Changing the destination or cruise line
- Updating passenger details (name changes, etc.)
- Adding or removing special requests (e.g., dietary restrictions, accommodations)

It's important to note that any changes you make might come with additional fees or the need to pay for a price difference if the new cruise is more expensive. The sooner you request the change, the more likely you'll be able to avoid hefty penalties.
